“ I will never forget meeting Eric and Danny for the first time in 1997 while on vacation in Florida. What a pair of wonderful people! I was working through my own loss of sorts, and their crazy ways made me realize life is to be lived and not regretted. And that is the way they lived. Their happiness shined for all to see. As for being parents, I was stunned on how happy they made the kids feel and how warm and open they were, and in turn, their kids were that way too!

It is with heartfelt sadness that this fun loving, one of a kind pair is now apart, however I know that Danny knows that Eric is looking down and still overseeing things with those blue eyes and his kind heart.

God Bless him and God bless Danny and the kids. They are all special people in my eyes.

Love,

Henry and Jason.

“ I worked with Eric. Through the course of the last year I became close to him. I would look forward to seeing him come in to work. I really felt like I could understand him. He was the type of person that you couldn't help but like. We shared many conversations and laughs together. Eric reminded me a lot of the people back home, he did not stand for any nonsense from anyone but at the same time he would have given or done anything for someone. He was a very caring and giving individual that will be greatly missed. I send my condolences and sympathies to his loved ones, you are all in our prayers and thoughts. I feel very blessed to have been able to cross Eric's path and honored to have become his friend. I miss you old blue eyes.
