“ I remember back in the mid 1970s in Frankfort we had a bad snow storm. Marion had found a truck driver that was stranded and had no where to go. He brought him home to spent the night. I remember we were frying quail and potatoes that night. He was always helpful to family and friends in need.

Marion helped me learn to play golf. Ronnie Mullins also played with us. When Ronnie did not like his first shot he would hit a 2nd ball, we called that a "Mulligan" and I thought that was short for "Mullins again".

Marion told a story about being in a small country town sitting in his car during a hard rain one night years ago. A police officer approached during the storm, knocked on the window and ask what he was doing. Marion said, "hulling peas". I'm not sure what happened after that but some times I'll use that expression when someone asks me a stupid question.
