“ My memories of "sis"are many through my life. She has been more like a sister than an auntie which is what i would call her sometimes. ( It was an inside joke between us).

When Martin and I moved to Aurora, ky. by the lake her and A.D. and mom(her sister)and Jesse would come and camp at Fenton camp ground. Gosh! We had such good times.

Long lazy days and evenings by the campfire. Heartfelt conversations about everything from kids to food to memories of past times.She loved the flea markets and yard sales there(and we made them all). I will always have an empty spot that only my "Auntie" sissy (that would make her smile) could fill.

I know that Jesus wanted her there with him and how she wanted to see her beloved A.D. and grandma Louise (her mom).

She is at peace now and if she were here she would say "love your family and friends and hold them close" but most of all "love Jesus". He's all that matters when you leave this world.(:

“ I have so many memories of "sis" from childhood. She was more like a sister to me than an 'auntie' thats what i called her sometimes (that was a joke between us).

When Martin and I moved to Aurora, Ky.by the lake Sis and A.D., mom (her sister) and Jesse would come down and camp at Fenton. Gosh! we had such good times. We would sit by the campfire on those long lazy days amd nights. Our conversations covered everything from kids to food to times past. Laughter would fill the camp and sometimes tears but we always talked through it. Endless flea markets and yard sales, she wanted to make them all and we did haha! Words can't explain how much I will miss her, there will be an empty space that can't be filled. I know Jesus said its time to come home and she wanted so much to be with her beloved A.D. She is at peace now and if she were here would say "love your family and friends and hold them close" but most of all "love Jesus". Thats all that matters in the end(:
